DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. Claims 1-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Aziz et al (U.S. 6,779,016) and Huang et al (US 2002/0091697).

As per claims 1,4,10,16 Aziz disclosed a system for efficient utilization of a single server with a single operating system kernel by an end user of a personal computer, said system comprising: a virtual computing environment functionally equivalent to a server having a full-featured operating system (col. 4, lines 24-41); said virtual computing environment constructed and arranged to separate user processes on the level of namespace and on the basis of restrictions implemented inside said operating system Kernel (col. 16, lines 1-11);

However Aziz did not disclose in detail whereby emulation of hardware resource or a dedicated memory is not required.

In the same field of endeavor Huang disclosed the invention provides a virtual desktop in a virtual computing environment such that a user sees the same desktop and has access to the same applications, files and amenities independent of the particular computer system on which access is gained (Page. 3, Paragraph 0040).

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention was made to have incorporated the invention provides a virtual desktop in a virtual computing environment such that a user sees the same desktop and has access to the same applications, files and amenities independent of the particular computer system on which access is gained as taught by Huang in the method of Bandhole so that the user can access the resources in the network from one computer system and reduce the latency in the system.

3. As per claim 2 Aziz-Huang disclosed wherein virtual computing environments are not visible to other virtual computing environments operating in a network of computers on non-network level communications (Huang, Page. 3, Paragraph 0042).

4. As per claims 3,5,11,17 Aziz-Huang disclosed wherein each virtual computing environment has a completely independent root file system (Aziz, col. 15, lines 52-63).

5. As per claims 6,12,18 Aziz-Huang disclosed wherein the virtual computing environments do not require a dedicated memory (Aziz, col. 14, lines 56-65).

6. As per claims 7,13,19 Aziz-Huang disclosed wherein resources of the operating system

Kernel belonging to different users are separated on the namespace level (Aziz, col. 16, lines 1-11).

7. As per claims 8,14,20 Aziz-Huang disclosed wherein resources and objects of one virtual computing environment are not visible to processes and objects of other virtual computing environments (Aziz, col. 16, lines 1-9).

8. As per claims 9,15 Bandhole-Huang disclosed wherein the virtual computing environment comprises processes and files of the operating system (Aziz, col. 8, lines 12-26).

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 07/28/2005 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Response to applicant's arguments are as follows.

9. Applicant argued that prior art did not disclose, "a single-box-multiple-virtual-servers".

As to applicant's argument Aziz disclosed, "Assume that the Control plane is asked to construct VSF, containing one load balancer/firewall and two Web servers connected to a storage device on the SAN" (col. 9, lines 44-47). One ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention knows that combining servers in one box or having servers to be connected separately is not a novelty.

Also Aziz disclosed in the above statement that is interpreted as combining the servers virtually in one group and called it VSF.

10. Applicant argued that prior art did not disclose, “emulation of hardware resource or a dedicated memory is not required”.

As to applicant’s argument Aziz and nor Huang is not using the emulation of hardware resource in its prior art.

11. Applicant argued that prior art did not disclose, “virtual computing environment constructed and arranged to separate user processes on the level of namespace and on the basis of restrictions implemented inside said operating system kernel”.

As to applicant’s argument Aziz disclosed, “The customer have a control value that allows the customer to change parameters such as minimum number of computing elements in a particular tier such as Web servers, or a time period in which the VSF must have a minimum amount of server capacity. The parameters may be linked to billing software that would automatically adjust the customer’s bill rate and generate billing log file entries”. One ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention interpreted as changing the parameters as minimum number of computing tier such as web servers as the basis of restrictions implemented inside said operating system Kernel.

Conclusion

12. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
